Re: For consideration by English speaking clients

My education and job experiences have been primarily in the area of business administration and personnel management. I have taught and also worked on various aspects of Human Resources, (HR). I have prepared and currently present number of seminars for professionals in (HR). A selected number of these seminars are used as a part of a comprehensive training program designed for those assuming responsibility in this area. I have been trained, for executive position, in the U.S and worked extensively for two of the top five American multinational companies: Ford Company and Chrysler Corporation. My job experiences cover both teaching at graduate level and seventeen years at Chrysler Corporation Headquarters at mid-level executive position. I have worked closely with many of the top executives of the Chrysler Corporation as well as the officers of companies providing various parts and services to Chrysler.

I have learned various management disciplines, and have been able to apply them in Iran as well as in the U.S. My multi-dimensional education and on-the-job experiences have enabled me to work for, and recruit and build task forces of various sizes, different nationalities, ages, gender, beliefs and expertise.

I am confident that working with your team of domestic or international professionals, will be both challenging and gratifying - as a consultant or as an active member of your existing management team. I will bring many years of experience and knowledge that can contribute substantially to the management of your company.
